NEED FOR SPEED: HOT PURSUIT 2

HP2 has everything you could ever want from a sports car racing game: Cool rides, great sounds, and a sense of incredible speed and power. The control system in the game feels absolutely spot-on, but what really pushes things over the edge is your need to contend with the cops, who take exception to you pushing your car north of 200 mph. If they clock you busting the limit they'll do what it takes to stop you, from trying to run you off the road, to roadblocks complete with tire spikes and even a helicopter that drops flash bombs. Roadblocks can be avoided, flash bombs can be dodged and cop cars can be out-driven, but while you're doing this, you're also required to beat the guys you're racing against. This may be one of the very best racing games ever made. The combination of desirable rides, the fantastic feel, the wonderful sounds and the awesome visuals combine to keep you amused for a lot longer than most driving games ever could.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT

TOBY KEITH

This has been quite a year for Toby Keith. Not only has he reigned in eight Academy of Country Music nominations, including song and single of the year for Courtesy of the Red, White and Blue, his current concert trek has been one of the hottest tickets around. Keith and his Easy Money Band pull out all the stops drawing songs from his current release Unleashed, and from his earlier hit CDs, 1993's Toby Keith, 1997's Dream Walkin' and 2001's Pull My Chain. A special treat for the evening were two songs written while on tour, The Taliban Song and I'll Never Smoke Weed with Willie Again, both performed acoustically while still keeping in theme with his patriotic and partying flair. It's easy to see why Keith is at the top of his game, he allows his fans to enjoy the simplicity of a good time.

Ilming hasn't even wrapped, and MGM is already looking at this becoming the first in a series of Cody Banks teen spy movies.
