At The Movies

BASIC

Agent Hardy (John Travolta) of the Drug Enforcement Agency is brought in by an old friend to investigate the disappearances of several Army Ranger cadets and their legendary drill instructor (Samuel L. Jackson), during an exercise at a basic training camp, Fort Clayton, in Panama. The last thing the government wants is a rogue agent investigating the disappearance, and as the investigation unfolds, the agent is placed in direct conflict with the Army's official investigating officer (Connie Nielsen) and nothing is as it seems. Full of twists and turns to keep you on your seat. Directed by John McTiernan (Predator, Die Hard, The Hunt for Red October).

ON VIDEO

FEMME FATALE

Laure Ash (Rebecca Romijn-Stamos), a master of manipulation and guile, plays a crucial role in a jewel theft and then abruptly leaves her life of crime behind her. Reinvented in the guise of a respectable married woman, Laure soon captures the attention of Nicolas. Attracted to the enigmatic Laure but serving an agenda of his own, Nicolas shatters her carefully crafted world with one shutter click of his camera. Suddenly exposed to the world and vulnerable to her enemies, Laure is determined to use her considerable assets and Nicolas' voyeuristic instincts to transform her identity and once again escape her past. Brian De Palma loads up Femme Fatale with visual tricks, story turns and a terrific score. If you missed this one in the theatres, pick it up and pop some corn.

The Shield is rushing toward its season finale with the gut-wrenching intensity that has carried it through two remarkable years. The FX series wraps up the season next week with what promises to be a satisfying flourish. While Mackey's team weighs a get-rich scheme, a gang execution hits close to home for Detective Claudette Wymns.

The Rock will be staying in WWE for an extra month following WrestleMania on March 30th. At this point, the originally scheduled main-event for WrestleMania, The Rock vs. Bill Goldberg, is a go for the April 27th WWE Backlash pay-per view from Worcester, MA.

Late Drowning Pool frontman Dave Williams' lifelong dream of buying his parents a house has finally been realized. Alan Meltzer, the Chairman and Owner of Wind-Up Records recently donated $250,000 from the sale of the group's DVD, Sinema, to "The House that Dave Built".

Jack Deamer, a Los Angeles-based interior designer who claimed he was the inspiration for Sean Hayes' flamboyantly gay character on NBC's hit comedy Will & Grace, has dropped his lawsuit against co creator Jason Mutchnick after the two sides reached a settlement for an undisclosed sum.

Ted Turner will remain on the board of media conglomerate AOL Time Warner even after he resigns from his position as vice chairman in May. AOL TW chairman and CEO Richard Parsons has asked Turner to remain on the board.

In a dig at Guns N' Roses' long-delayed Chinese Democracy album, the Offspring wanted to title their upcoming disc Chinese Democracy (You Snooze You Lose). But when GNR frontman Axl Rose caught wind of the plan, he had his lawyers send a cease-and-desist letter to the punkers' camp.

Preliminary television ratings for the Academy Awards were down 15 percent from last year, and it could wind up the least popular Oscar telecast ever according to ABC.

The Disturbed-led Music as a Weapon II tour will yield a live CD, according to frontman David Draiman. The as-yet-untitled disc will boast album tracks and live versions of unreleased cuts from Disturbed, Chevelle, Taproot and Unloco. Meanwhile, a remix of Disturbed's Liberate will appear on the upcoming Matrix Reloaded soundtrack due May 6.
